

This should appear in the header.

---

The objective of this file is to test transitions. The restructured text specification says that:

The syntax for a transition marker is a horizontal line of 4 or more repeated punctuation characters. The syntax is the same as section title underlines without title text. Transition markers require blank lines before and after.

...

The processing system is free to render transitions in output in any way it likes. For example, horizontal rules (<hr>) in HTML output would be an obvious choice.

So, let's try a transition here.

---

And this should be after it.

We also put a transition in the header and one in the footer, but docutils crashes on doing it that way, so we add "headerSeparator" and "footerSeparator" to the page template in the stylesheet.

---

This should appear in the footer.